Increasing Participation of Refugees in European schools

Our Mission

As the Increasing Participation of Refugees in European Schools project comes to its conclusion, we can proudly reflect on the significant progress made in promoting inclusive education across Europe. Through collaboration among schools, educators, and partner organizations, the project has successfully created innovative approaches to support refugee students' participation and learning. The outcomes demonstrate how inclusive education can serve as a foundation for stronger, more cohesive communities.

Looking ahead, the project's results will continue to inspire future initiatives and policies aimed at improving educational access for refugees and other vulnerable groups.

The partnerships built throughout this journey have laid the groundwork for ongoing cooperation at both local and European levels. As we close this chapter, we celebrate not only what has been achieved but also the shared commitment to ensuring that every learner, regardless of background, has the opportunity to succeed.

Results

- One of the project's greatest achievements is the development and implementation of e-learning tools that have enhanced access to quality education for refugee learners.
- These digital solutions have empowered teachers to adapt their methods and have provided students with flexible, engaging, and language-sensitive learning opportunities. The exchange of best practices among participating schools has fostered a network of educators committed to diversity and inclusion.
